11th Annual Wine Tasting March 29

Join us for a night that celebrates women in the wine business in the best way possible - tasting their wine! The lack of female representation and leadership in the wine industry has been the historical narrative. As recently as 2020, only 14 percent of California's 4,200 wineries had a female head winemaker. Despite the obstacles, women have maneuvered to shape the industry into the glory it is today - dating back to 1152 with Eleanor of Aquitaine. All are welcome!

Director, University College Career and Academic Programming

What do employers generally seek in candidates? They look for a combination of hard and soft skills. Hard skills are technical abilities, such as proficiency in specific software or language. Soft skills are personal attributes such as communication, teamwork, problem-solving and adaptability. Employers also value critical thinking, leadership, time management and attention to detail. In today's fast-paced and ever-changing business environment, being able to continuously learn and take initiative is also highly sought after.
