MSU Human Rights Education Intern
Public School Outreach & Classroom Visit
Fall 2016

MSU Human Rights Education Interns are looking to present a lesson on human rights to a class or student group at a local public middle or high school.

Trained with MSU faculty in the Holocaust, Genocide, and Human Rights Education Project, each intern will present a carefully crafted lesson on a human rights topic of his or her choice.

Programs are available on:
The Black Lives Matter movement
The politics of women’s reproductive health
LGBTQ civil rights
The Syrian refugee crisis
African American struggle for educational justice

Host class should provide a warm welcome to interns and offer at least one 40 minute period to present a lesson during or after school.

The MSU Human Rights Education Internship program trains future human rights educators for a wide range of possible careers dedicated to social justice and public outreach. To that end, the host teacher and students are invited to provide constructive feedback to the intern for an interactive learning experience.

This is a great opportunity to host a college student who is passionate about human rights! Target dates are November & December 2016.

For more information or to schedule a visit by a human rights education intern, please contact Dr. Zoë Burkholder, Director of the Holocaust, Genocide, and Human Rights Education Project at burkholderz@mail.montclair.edu

https://www.montclair.edu/cehs/academics/centers-and-institutes/education-project