Counseling
Master’s, Certification and Certificate Programs
A CACREP – Accredited Program
The Counseling programs at Montclair State University prepare students to become multiculturally competent counselors in a variety of settings. Students are prepared to work with diverse populations in elementary and secondary schools, community agencies, student affairs positions in colleges and universities, and substance abuse treatment facilities. The academic preparation follows guidelines established by state licensure and certification boards. The school, community, and student affairs concentrations are accredited by the Council for the Accreditation of Counseling and Related Educational Programs (CACREP).

The graduate programs in Counseling offer several advantages:

- Opportunities for alternative scheduling in the form of face-to-face, hybrid, or Saturday classes to meet the needs of the working student
- The opportunity to master counseling skills in a technologically state-of-the-art counseling laboratory, which allows students to record, archive, and review their own counseling practice sessions, which enhances their ability to serve future clients
- A diverse group of faculty members actively engaged in scholarly research who hold national leadership positions in professional associations, including the American Counseling Association (ACA)
- A theory-to-practice model of instruction that allows students to gain practical experience in schools, community agencies, and colleges and universities
- An emphasis on the infusion of multicultural counseling and social justice practice in all courses
- A vibrant and diverse student body that has the opportunity to engage with faculty members on research and present at professional conferences

Programs

Master of Arts Degree in Counseling (CACREP-Accredited for School, Community, and Higher Education concentrations)

The MA in Counseling program focuses on providing opportunities for professionals to develop skills and competencies in a variety of settings. Program concentrations include: school counseling, which prepares you for certification as a school counselor in New Jersey; community counseling, which prepares you for community agency work and licensure as a Professional Counselor; student affairs, which prepares you to work as a student affairs professional in college settings; and addictions counseling, which prepares you to become a counselor in settings that deal with substance abuse.

Master’s program graduates may choose to return to the University and apply to the Department’s PhD in Counselor Education program, the only doctoral program in Counselor Education in the greater New Jersey/New York area.

Substance Awareness Coordinator Certification

The Substance Awareness Coordinator (SAC) Certification Program offers students the opportunity to take a sequence of courses required by the New Jersey Department of Education for individuals who wish to become Substance Awareness Coordinators in K-12 schools. To be considered for admission into the program, and to be eligible for the SAC Certificate of Eligibility with Advanced Standing (CEAS), the candidate must hold the following at the time of application:

1. A standard instructional certificate or a school psychologist, school social worker, school counselor, director of school counseling services or school nurse endorsement
2. OR a valid Licensed Clinical Alcohol and Drug Counselor (LCADC) credential issued by the New Jersey Alcohol and Drug Counselor Committee of the Marriage and Family Board
3. OR a valid Certified Prevention Specialist (CPS) credential issued by the Addiction Professionals Certification Board of New Jersey
4. OR hold a master's or higher degree from a regionally accredited college or university.

Certified Alcohol and Drug Counselor Certification

The sequence of courses in the Certified Alcohol and Drug Counselor (CADC) Certificate program fulfills the educational requirements set by the Addiction Professionals Certification Board of New Jersey (APCBNJ) for CADC eligibility. Full certification or licensure would include additional requirements. Applicants may apply to both the MA in Counseling and the Certificate program concurrently (two separate applications are required).

Advanced Counseling Certificate (Post-Master's)

The Advanced Counseling Certificate program is designed to fulfill state-level and national standards for Licensed Professional Counselors. This program meets the highest professional standards according to CACREP, The National Board for Certified counselors (NBCC), and the NJ Board of Marriage and Family Therapists.

This certificate will provide the additional credit hours necessary to obtain a State of New Jersey Licensed Professional Counselor credential.

School Counseling Certification (Post-Master's)

The School Counseling Certification program is designed to fulfill state-level and national standards for School Counselors. This program meets the highest professional standards according to the New Jersey Department of Education, and the national accrediting body, CACREP. This certificate will provide the additional credit hours necessary to obtain a NJ School Counselor Certification.

The Department also offers the Director of School Counseling certification program through the Educational Leadership program area.
