VILLA OF THE ANTONINES

Field School

Genzano di Roma, Italy

June 29 - July 26, 2014

EXCAVATE... the remains of a Roman imperial villa.

EXPLORE... an archaeological site located at the 18th mile of the Via Appia, near Rome.

EXPERIENCE... this unique opportunity to uncover ancient history.

The Villa of the Antonines is believed to have been the property of the second century CE imperial family of the Antonines. Students will be working on the recently-identified amphitheater near the baths, filled with mosaic tesserae and fragments of luxurious, imported marble. Participants will receive hands-on training in all aspects of archaeological investigation including geophysical surveys, mapping, and cultural heritage management.

Estimated cost: $5,100 (for undergraduates; graduate students should consult the co-directors for details.) Cost does not include airfare.

Program cost includes: Shared occupancy rooms, 3 meals per day during the week, tuition for 6 semester hours of undergraduate credit, and weekend field trip.

No prerequisites or prior field experience are required
