II. New Business

President Cole’s Annual Charge

President Cole’s charge included two issues for the Commission to consider:
1. Addressing the increasing academic achievement gap between male and female students. There is a serious achievement gap, with female students graduating at a faster rate than male students. The social consequences must be evaluated especially in minority populations. President Cole noted that cultural factors also come into play when examining the issue of minority male student representation, and that a different perspective about academic achievement must be created within this population because the social consequences and implications of not addressing this problem are enormous.

2. Addressing the issue of religious tolerance. There has been increased religious anger and violence recently portrayed throughout the world that need to be discussed. Issues surrounding freedom of speech vs. hatred, intolerance fear and ignorance need to be explored. President Cole noted that when it comes to religion there is a difference in cultural views between our country and others. The charge is for the PCAAEOD help promote the discussion on religious tolerance and understanding within our community.
