HELPFUL HINTS

AND

YOUR GUIDE TO RESIDENTIAL LIVING

The purpose of this publication is to provide a general guide to living in the residential communities at Montclair State University and is intended to be a resource for every resident student.

Students are expected to adhere to University policies and regulations and subsequent conduct procedures. Such information is provided in the University Student Handbook which can be found on the University’s website via this link:

http://www.montclair.edu/deanstudents/studentconduct/codeofconduct.html

The basic philosophy of the policies in the residence communities at Montclair State University is one of education. Accordingly, the focus is directed toward the growth and development of the individual student by encouraging self-discipline and by fostering a respect for the rights and privileges of others. The goal of any policy from the Office of Residential Education & Services is to allow our residents to mature, while protecting the rights of all students within the residence hall communities.

Montclair State University reserves the right to update and/or change policies throughout the year. Any questions concerning policies and procedures should be directed to your Community Director or the Residential Education & Services staff in the central office.
WHAT IS A RESIDENCE COMMUNITY AND ITS RESPONSIBILITIES?

By definition, a residential community means living in close proximity and interacting on a regular basis with a diverse group of resident students who share a common purpose. Students work together to define expectations for all members in the group and assume responsibility for meeting these expectations.

As part of a residential community, students must be respectful and considerate of other persons and take responsibility for the safety and wellbeing of the group and their living environment. As such, if you see or know of a situation which could endanger lives or negatively impact the community, it is your responsibility to report it to a Residential Education & Services staff member, or University Police.

The Residential Education & Services staff is committed to help you make the most of your college living experience. You are likely to have the most contact with your Community Assistant (CA). The Community Assistants assigned to the residence halls and apartment communities are peer leaders selected by The Office of Residential Education & Services for their ability to connect with students and offer assistance in coping with various concerns. They are trained extensively in areas such as helping skills, conflict resolution, crisis intervention and activity planning.

Planning activities that contribute to the community in caring, meaningful ways, assisting our residents in their academic success and personal growth, are some examples of how our Community Assistants contribute to developing a sense of community. Together with your CA, you can help build an open and supportive community to call home.
ROOMMATES / SUITEMATES

Living Peacefully – “Getting Along”

For some, you may have had a room all to yourself for as long as you can remember. For others who are accustomed to sharing, it is still an adjustment adapting to different personalities and lifestyles that may differ from yours. It may be a challenge to live cooperatively with roommates and suitemates in an area that may be smaller than your room at home. However, view it as part of your MSU experience, an opportunity to learn about others, while sharing your background and interests. You may just find it well worth the effort.

Talking to someone unfamiliar may be difficult at times, however, communication is the key to any healthy relationship. Be a good listener and open to compromise while asserting your own ideas and rights, and you’ll probably discover that you have more in common than you thought.

Some helpful tips:

- Be willing to communicate right from the start. If you have taken the opportunity to speak to your roommate(s) before you arrive on campus, you have the advantage of having exchanged information about what to bring. Is it necessary for both of you to have a TV? Can you share the cost of a refrigerator, etc.? You may also have shared ideas about decorating the room, style, etc. This early communication might alleviate some initial problems with room arrangements. Don’t judge your roommate based on on-line communities and communications.

- If you haven’t already touched base with your roommate(s) prior to arriving on campus, it is a good idea to discuss ideas on possible room set-up before actually arranging the room.
Knowing that there is limited space and you may not be able to fit all the items you brought with you, be willing to compromise. Sharing is important, so be sure to have clear expectations of each other as to what items you do and do not feel comfortable sharing.

In addition to discussing some of those living space concerns right from the start, it helps to share some basic information about your backgrounds, where you are from, your family, hobbies, academic interests, etc.

Be proactive and honest about your feelings, while at the same time being considerate and respectful. Let your roommate(s)/suitemates know what really annoys you or makes you angry. Discuss how you feel about overnight guests, alcohol, phone use, housekeeping, whether you are a morning or night person, and other aspects of your personal habits.

When sharing your feelings and concerns, use statements. For example, instead of saying, “You make me very angry,” try saying “I am very angry.” Making definitive statements allows you to own your feelings, and your roommate is less apt to be defensive.

It is not necessary for roommates to be the best of friends to be compatible. Dealing with differences, whether cultural, spiritual or lifestyle may be a challenge, but with a positive, open attitude, it can be a wonderful learning experience. You more than likely find that you and your roommate(s) have quite a bit in common once you move past any differences on the surface. If not, you will still have learned something valuable about how to live with someone very different from you -- a skill that will serve you well in many other situations in life.
ROOMMATE BILL OF RIGHTS

As a roommate, you have the right to...

1. Study and sleep free from undue interference (noise, stereo, guests, etc.) in your room.

2. Expect roommates will respect each other's personal belongings.

3. A clean environment in which to live.

4. Free access to your room and its facilities without pressure from your roommate(s) to stay away frequently.

5. Personal privacy.

6. Have guests, with the understanding they will be respectful of your roommate(s), suitemates or apartment mates and other residents of the floor or apartment, and they will strictly adhere to the guest policy.

7. Be free of fear and intimidation—physical and/or emotional.

8. Expect reasonable cooperation in the use of room-shared appliances and a commitment to agreed-upon payment procedures for those appliances.

9. Be free of peer pressure or ridicule regarding your personal lifestyle choices.
DEALING WITH CHALLENGES THAT ARISE

• Remain objective and respectful.

1. Talk to your roommate(s) about the problem(s). Don’t gossip to others and don’t hold it in.
2. Be specific about your feelings, e.g. – “I get angry when you do ‘y’ and ‘z,’” rather than, “You’re a jerk.” The second comment is not productive in solving the problem because it’s too personal and not specific enough.
3. Listen to your roommate’s perspective the same way you would want them to listen to yours.
4. Avoid communicating through on-line communities and referring to posts regarding roommate concerns and/or behaviors. Remember, face-to-face communication is the key to communicating successfully.
5. Be willing to compromise whenever possible.

• Consult an objective outsider if you are unable to resolve issues yourselves.

1. Your CA can help mediate the situation.
2. A mutual friend or another person who is impartial, such as your Community Director may also be of assistance.
3. Reach out to the Mediation Resource Center (MRC), located in Dinallo Heights Office for assistance. They can also be reached at mrc@mail.montclair.edu
4. Complete a roommate contract to help guide decisions about living together.

• Be sure you confirm the points upon which you have agreed.

1. Unchecked assumptions can also be damaging.
2. Put your agreement in writing, e.g. “Bill will use headphones for his TV after 11 p.m.,” and “Sam will not turn on his radio in the morning before 8 am” or, “Mary will have her friend stay on weekends only.”
3. Be realistic about agreements you make with your roommate(s).
• An official room change would be the last resort.

1. Remember, a new roommate can be the source of many new problems.

RESPONSIBILITIES, POLICIES & PROCEDURES AND OTHER IMPORTANT INFORMATION

NEW STUDENTS

We attempt to meet the majority of new students’ housing preferences, such as requested roommate(s) and building of choice. Given limited space, we work diligently to accommodate as many requests as possible.

RETURNING STUDENTS

If you are a returning student you may expect to be living with the individual with whom you reserved housing during room selection last spring or with another returning student who was assigned to your room. If your room was not completely filled during room selection, you will have a new student(s) assigned to the vacancy. The new student may be either a first year student or transfer. First year students are not assigned to the apartment communities.

ROOM CHANGES

No room changes are permitted until after the first two weeks of each semester. A room change survey will be offered and information will be posted and sent via email after opening about the process. After the room change survey, room changes will be coordinated through your Community Director, who will provide instructions and forms to be completed. Room changes will be permitted only during designated weeks each semester. Unauthorized room changes are considered a Code of Conduct violation.

SPECIAL HOUSING REQUESTS

Students requesting special accommodations for health reasons must submit medical documentation clearly stating the functional limitations, diagnosis, specific accommodations requested and the professional credentials of the evaluator. This documentation should be forwarded to the Disability Resource Center, Morehead Hall, Room 305.
HOUSING CANCELLATIONS

The Residence License and Dining Services Agreement  covers the entire 2012-2013 academic year and cannot be transferred to any other academic year. No refunds will be issued or a cancellation of housing permitted unless: 1) the student is a first year freshman or transfer student and he/she notifies the University in writing that they wish to cancel this License within five (5) days following the date notice sent by the University of their room assignment; or 2) the student submits a request in writing to the University to be released from this License and the University determines, in its sole discretion, that circumstances exist to justify granting it hereinafter, “Release.” For example, the University may grant a Release if, prior to the expiration of this License, a student withdraws from the University, transfers to another institution, studies abroad or takes a medical leave of absence, and the University is able to enter into a License with another student for the Released student’s bed.

The Residence License and Dining Agreement is in effect for the entire academic year. No refunds of room charges will be made unless the student applies for, and the University grants a Release.

Residents who do not enroll for an academic term and complete the Leave of Absence or Withdrawal process, graduate, or are accepted and enroll in study abroad, forfeit their room assignment and remain liable for payments due under this Residence License unless a Release is granted by the University.

Students are strongly advised to carry personal property insurance, either through parents’ homeowner's policy or another personal policy.

ROOM SAFETY, HEALTH AND MAINTENANCE INSPECTIONS

Although residents have the right to personal privacy, authorized representatives of the University have the right to enter any space, at any time in order to inspect facilities for fire safety, health, maintenance, and/or for damages to the space or its equipment.

Room inspections will be conducted on a monthly basis. To avoid disciplinary action, do not have in your possession any prohibited items listed both in this handbook and your Residence License and Dining Services Agreement. The Residence License and Dining Services Agreement is on our website: www.montclair.edu/resed.
Additional health, safety and security information can be found in this handbook under “Other Policies and Procedures.”
TRASH DISPOSAL

For your convenience, large trash receptacles are provided in trash rooms and laundry rooms in each residence hall. Trash cans, for smaller litter, are also provided on the grounds surrounding the residence halls and apartments. Do not place trash outside your room or apartment door. Abuse of this policy will lead to disciplinary action through our conduct process and/or community damage bills.

UTILITIES

The University will not be responsible for failure to furnish utilities when caused by any reason beyond its reasonable control. Whenever possible, notice will be given of any scheduled interruption of utilities. If a room, suite or apartment becomes uninhabitable, the University will make every effort to relocate resident(s) on a permanent or temporary basis.

YOUR BUILDING/ROOM/APARTMENT MAINTENANCE AND DAMAGE RESPONSIBILITIES - IMPORTANT INFORMATION

REPAIRS IN YOUR ROOM/APARTMENT

The staff members of the University Facilities Department are responsible for correcting and preventing mechanical/electrical problems in all areas. If repairs are required in your room/apartment, a work order should be completed by following the directions on our website: http://www.montclair.edu/resed/.

Emergencies which occur after hours on business days, as well as Saturdays, Sundays and Holidays should be promptly reported to the Community Assistant on duty in your building. The CA will have access to maintenance personnel.

RESPONSIBILITY FOR ROOM/APARTMENT CONDITION

One of the first duties of the Community Assistants (CAs) when they return in the fall is to complete a Room/Apartment Condition Report (RCR/ACR) for your room/apartment. These forms are used to assess the condition of a student’s room/apartment and its furnishings upon check-in and check-out. Upon arrival, you will be asked to review the Room/Apartment Condition and Inventory Report, sign and date it. Once you have signed the Room/Apartment Condition Report (RCR/ACR), you have accepted all of the stated information. The purpose of the RCR/ACR is to avoid having damage charges assessed to you upon check-out, when a staff member will once again inspect the condition of your room/apartment and take inventory of the furnishings.

Any damages that occur during the time of occupancy will be noted on the RCR/ACR. A copy will be given to you and your roommates, and you will be billed accordingly. You must make a thorough inspection of your living quarters when you check in. If you find damages or missing items not noted on the RCR/ACR, please discuss it with your CA, who will record it on the form so that you will not be billed at the end of your term of occupancy.

Should someone in your room/apartment vacate the premises before the end of the semester, it is important that any damage done by that individual during his/her residency be apportioned to him/her. It is also important that this information be noted on your RCR/ACR when the vacancy occurs to denote room/apartment conditions at that point in time.

DAMAGE ASSESSMENT

It is the policy of the Office of Residential Education & Services to assess charges to students for damages occurring in their rooms/suites/apartments and common areas in and outside the residential facilities. Individual charges are assessed to a student who is found to be directly responsible for damages occurring in his/her room, the room of a fellow student or any common area. In the event we cannot ascertain which resident is responsible for the damages, the financial assessment will be apportioned equally among all residents of the room/suite/apartment, floor or wing.

Damages to any other part of the building caused by persons unknown to Residential Education & Services staff may be charged to all residents of the building. If you know the individual(s) responsible for damages, it is your responsibility to report the information to your Community Director in order for the responsible person(s) to be billed.

Damage assessment will be conducted by the Community Director after you check out. If there has been any damage to your room, an explanation in writing must be attached to your Room/Apartment Condition Report and brought to the attention of the CA upon check out. If you are not responsible for the damage and someone else should be billed, it is important that this person also sign the note of explanation.

You will also be billed for furniture that is missing from your room or apartment. At check-out time, if the furniture in your room is missing or is not the same as the furniture at check in, a charge will be assessed for the missing pieces. Therefore, do not remove or switch the furniture without clearance from the Community Director. If a switch has been authorized, make sure this change is noted on the appropriate Room/Apartment Condition.

Appeals for damages must be made in writing to the Assistant Director for Facilities Management, in the Office of Residential Education & Services.

AVOIDING DAMAGES

Don’t use chairs as footstools; don’t keep sharp objects in your pockets where they may tear furniture; don’t place hot items from an oven on the chairs, desks, etc. Remember: treat furniture with care and it will hold up without suffering damage beyond normal wear and tear.

To avoid wall damage do not use double-sided tape, Scotch tape, heavy-duty masking tape, or any substance that may peel or stain the paint. Do not use tacks and nails as they leave holes and may take chunks of plaster from the wall. If cork strips or picture moldings are provided in your room, please use them.

Mattresses are also easily damaged and expensive to replace. Mattresses kept on the floor become soiled. Pushing a bed up against the heater may scorch the mattress. Be careful when you have drinks or liquids in or around your bed.

VANDALISM

Your residence hall is your home for the time period you will live on campus. If you see someone break or damage any part of your building, please report it to your Community Assistant or Community Director. Remember, all residents will be charged for any damages that occur unless those responsible for the damage(s) are identified. Residents found to have committed acts of vandalism will be charged for the repair and/or replacement of the item(s) damaged and will face conduct sanctions which may result in dismissal from housing.

COMMON AREA DAMAGE POLICY

In order to promote a positive residential community at Montclair State University, a Common Area Damage Policy has been implemented for all residence facilities. The Common Area Damage Policy helps to ensure that the residential community in which you live will remain a well-kept, pleasant environment for everyone to enjoy.

Your residence hall/apartment is your home. Its comfort, attractiveness and state of upkeep reflect upon those who reside within the University community. Normal wear and tear is expected and the cost of replacement and repair is anticipated when residence hall fees are determined. However, the effort to keep costs as low as possible is severely hampered by deliberate damage done to the facility.

What is Common Area Damage?

“Common Area” refers to the University property outside your room or apartment i.e. lounges, hallways, community bathrooms, lobbies, stairwells, grounds, etc. Common area damage includes, but is not limited to the following items: windows, lounge furniture, walls, fixtures, media equipment, recreational equipment, appliances, drapes, carpet, vending machines, graffiti and/or need for excessive cleaning. Assessment of damage deals primarily with major items, repetitive vandalism, and that which is beyond the scope of normal wear and tear.
Acts of vandalism are strictly forbidden. Every effort is made to identify and charge the individual(s) responsible. However, at times, damage occurs which cannot be attributed to a specific individual or group. The University, therefore, has implemented a policy to deal with this problem. When deliberate, malicious or accidental (as a result of misconduct) damage occurs and the responsible person(s) does not come forward, the following guidelines for administering the charges will be implemented.

When Vandals Strike

When Common Area Damage occurs, the appropriate area residents will be notified by their Community Assistant or by posted announcements in your residence building. As a member of your community, you are to relay any information you may have about the damage that has occurred.

We encourage students that is they SEE SOMETHING, SAY SOMETHING. Text key word “E-TIPS” then a space then your message to 67283.

If the responsible person(s) has not been identified within three (3) business days of the date of the damage notification, the cost to repair such damage will be divided among those that share the affected area -- whether it is a floor, a section, or the entire building.

Why Do We Bill For Common Area Damage?

Common Area Damage billing can be frustrating for those who are not responsible for the damage. However, the foundation of residential living is comprised of strongly held concepts of community responsibility. With the support of the Residential Education & Services staff, responsibility is delegated to residents to maintain the quality of living within their individual hall/community. Without this joint effort, success in maintaining an environment conducive to our students' academic pursuits would not be possible.
Appealing Common Area Damages

Residents that are assessed fines will have the opportunity to appeal the decision in writing within five business days from the date of notification of charges. The Appeal should be directed to the Assistant Director for Facilities.

How Will This System Run?

When damage in a common area has occurred, the Community Director along with Facilities Management and Engineering staff will investigate to determine if the alleged damage appears to be deliberate, malicious, or accidental as a result of misconduct.

The Community Director will send all notifications via the MSU e-mail system. This is the University's official form of communication. You will not receive paper copies of notices. These notifications will keep the community aware of common area damage and potential fees.

The first notice serves to inform the entire hall, floor, respective section, suite or room where the Common Area Damage has occurred and deemed beyond the scope of normal wear and tear. This notice will appear in the designated area, and will identify the damage, where it was found, who may be charged and the total cost. If the person(s) are not identified within three (3) business days, billing the appropriate section will commence.

The second notice serves to inform the entire hall, floor, respective section, suite or room that Common Area Damage charges will be applied. This notice will include the section of the hall (entire hall, floor, section, suite or room) to incur billing charges. The total cost, which includes damages and labor time, is split equally among those residing in the affected area at the time damage is found. This notice will remain posted for five (5) business days and then will be filed in the Community Director's office.
Appeals

Residents will have an opportunity to appeal charges billed for damage charges by submitting a written appeal to the Assistant Director for Facilities Management in the Office of Residential Education & Services. This appeal must be received no later than 5 days from date charged.
