- two (2) separate letters from two students whom the nominee has taught (or is currently teaching).

Letters from administrators/colleagues should attest to your strengths as an educator. Letters from students are most helpful if they contain specific examples of the impact that the teacher's work had on them and on their classmates in learning Italian and/or appreciating the Italian language and culture If re-applying after more than two years ago, at least one new or updated letter of recommendation must be submitted.

SECTION C: Nominee's Resume of no more than two (2) pages.

SECTION E: Lesson Plan Sample – The teacher's effectiveness as demonstrated in sample lesson plans that conform to the standards of the Department of Education or other such entity in the state in which the applicant teaches. The lesson plans should address oral and written communication. These plans should evidence:

1. goals and activities that inspire and engage students in their own learning

SECTION J: Recorded Lesson – The 2025 Coccia-Inserra Award application process will follow a new format in lieu of the previous video submission requirement. Our panel of judges will review and evaluate all of the preliminary applications. As part of their review, the judges will select the three top applicants and invite them to arrange a Zoom call with the Coccia Institute Program Coordinator, Cristina Latino, for a live observation of their Italian class. The Zoom meeting, which will last between 10-15 minutes, will be recorded and shared with the judges for their review. The video will not be shared with or distributed to anyone beyond the panel for the award. Permission forms must be sent home if the School or the Board does not already have in place a policy about students appearing in promotional materials. Once notified of their successful preliminary submission, the finalists are encouraged to arrange a Zoom meeting as early as possible with the Coccia Program Coordinator, and no later than Thursday, May 15th, 2025. It is recommended that the laptop on which the Zoom call will be held is fully charged before the meeting begins, is strategically positioned to receive the best angle of the live lesson, and all notifications that could disrupt the call be muted. The Zoom meeting does not need to be projected unto a projector.

- i. Each finalist must also submit a description (not to exceed one page) of the lesson that the panel will view. Please tell us about the students, their level, and the learning goals for the lesson we are watching. This information will help the panel contextualize what they are watching.
- ii. The most successful lesson will display meaningful classroom interaction between the teacher and students. It is important to note that the lesson should not display a scripted or “professional” tone, whereas it is intended to reflect the daily routine and organic teaching style of the applicant supported by attentive and positively reinforced student interaction. In all, it should allow the judging committee to briefly “sit” in the classroom to observe the effectiveness of the methods and strategies used by the instructor.
