

10 Reasons To Do an Internship

#1 - Experience

- It's very hard to get into any field without experience, and an internship is a great way to get your foot in the door.
- You'll get all the tools you need to have the career that you're interested in.
- Learning from experts in your field outside of the classroom may be the way you learn best.

#2 - Networking

- . Internships are a great way to develop working relationships that may come in hand later.
- . It's true that a lot of getting a good job is not only what you know, but who you know.
- . Having others there to help you is one great way of getting ahead in your career.

#3 - Trial Run

- Rather than stay in a career track that you don't like, an internship is a great way to learn if this is the path for you.
- You may like learning about the field in theory, but not the work that it entails.
- If you do not like your internship, that may be a sign that you need to find a new career path.

#4 - Resume Building

- An internship is a great addition to any resume, and gives you a leg up on others entering your field.
- The job market is more competitive than ever, and you should do anything you can to make yourself stand out.
- Building a good resume can be especially hard as a student, so any chance to do so is essential.

#5 - Possible Career Advancement

- In a best case scenario, a good internship might lead directly to a position at the company of your choosing.
- Not everyone is presented with this outcome, but you should take advantage of the opportunity!

#6 - Structure

- As a college student, it can sometimes be hard to settle into a routine, especially with the freedom college presents.
- Doing an internship provides you with something to do at a specific time.
- It can be a useful tool to bridge the gap between college life and a full-time career.

#7 - Professionalism

- By working in a professional setting, you learn how to conduct yourself in different situations.
- Working with others in the same field will provide new perspectives and strategies you can employ to be effective on the job.
- This is what brings your formal education full circle and helps you put your skills to the test.

#8 - Learn About Your Talents & Limits

- Receive applicable and reliable feedback from people already working in the field.
- Working in fast-paced professional environments will allow you to hone in on time management skills
- Demonstrate your work ethic and begin to integrate good habits into your work.

#9 - Working With Others

- Being a part of a team and learning to work with others is a skill that often goes overlooked.
- You might not be their best friend, but often times it is important to learn how to put your differences aside to get the job done.
- At an internship, you'll meet all types of people that you can learn to collaborate with.

#10 - Personal Growth

- Beyond just career-related learning, an internship may be an opportunity to learn more about yourself.
- Maybe you like to work alone. Or you prefer to work in larger groups.
- You will learn how to develop a work-life balance, and how to make time for yourself while staying productive.
