UCSD has developed a well respected and robust system for requesting and evaluating diversity and inclusion statements. It's worth reviewing closely. In brief:

"All candidates applying for faculty appointments at UC San Diego are required to submit a personal statement on their contributions to diversity, regardless of personal characteristics. The purpose of the statement is to identify candidates who have the professional skills, experience, and/or willingness to engage in activities that will advance institutional diversity and equity goals.

In accordance with APM 210-1-d, "these contributions to diversity and equal opportunity can take a variety of forms including efforts to advance equitable access to education, public service that addresses the needs of California's diverse population, or research in a scholar's area of expertise that highlights inequalities."

They also have developed a rubric for evaluation those statements:
