

Teaching the Black Freedom Struggle in the Black Lives Matter Era

Montclair State University

Wednesday
October 20, 2021
3:30 - 5:00 p.m.

Online

This program is free and entirely online. Advance registration is required and space is limited.

Professional development hours will be awarded.

Registration Link:
http://bit.ly/BlackHistory_2021

This K-12 professional development program helps educators and student teachers craft powerful anti-racist lessons on the history of the Black freedom struggle. Join Montclair State professors and educators from the New-York Historical Society for an engaging workshop that will include hands-on activities with primary historical texts relating to women in the Black civil rights movement. Our goal is to help teachers contextualize the Black Lives Matter movement in the long civil rights movement.

because history matters

NEW-YORK HISTORICAL SOCIETY
MUSEUM & LIBRARY

