Teaching to Transgress, featuring the artwork of Na'Ye Perez, explores themes of community, presence, shared experiences, identity, and accessibility. Perez's antidisiplinary practice spans painting, drawing, printmaking, performance, and socially engaged art, transcending traditional academic boundaries to present innovative frameworks and methods. The exhibition title draws inspiration from bell hooks' Teaching to Transgress: Education as the Practice of Freedom, a text that brings practical knowledge of the classroom alongside emotions and personal expression. This exhibition is organized by Montclair State University Galleries and curated by Director Megan C. Austin.

Theater: *Til Death Do Us Part?

A Fundraiser for the EOF Book Fund
1 - 2 p.m. and 4 - 5 p.m.

Studio 1200, Enter through The School of Communication and Media (SCM)

Pre-registration suggested. Space is limited. Cost: $15 General Admission.

Til Death Do Us Part? chronicles the tumultuous relationship of a young African-American couple as they struggle with love, commitment and compromise. This is a two-character play, written by Dr. Daniel Jean '00, Associate Provost and former EOF Director. The play offers the audience a realistic illustration of the many obstacles facing young lovers as they attempt to stay committed to their vows. This play is directed by Associate Professor Charles Anthony Burks, BA Theatre Studies Program. Please arrive 15 minutes before start time.

Special thanks to the Black Alumni Advisory Council for their support of this production.

All proceeds benefit the EOF Book Fund.
