

Want to land that perfect internship? That amazing job?
~ Learn to transfer your university training to a range of professional contexts ~

Telling Your Story: Secrets to Job Search Success

This workshop focuses on using story as a professional tool to make the most of your skills beyond the MSU campus. Facilitator Dr. Anna Marie Trester empowers students' sense of ownership in thinking about and creatively pursuing career.

Sessions are open to the entire MSU community and are ideal for arts, humanities, and social sciences majors, especially those in languages and linguistics!

18 April 10-11:15am Part I: Zoom video conference (UH 3046)

24 April 2:45-4:15pm Part II: Live workshop (SBUS 011)

4:30-5:30pm Open Office Hours (Schmitt 318)

Sessions are not cumulative. Join us for one or all of them!

For more info, contact Dr. Maisa Taha: taham@montclair.edu

Dr. Anna Marie Trester is an interactional sociolinguist and storyteller who has worked with hundreds of linguists to find professional expression of their skills and training. She is the founder of Career Linguist, a blog and resource center for career exploration. Her Twitter handle is @CareerLinguist. For her MA at NYU, she explored the discourse marker “pura vida” in Costa Rican Spanish, and for her doctoral work at Georgetown, she did ethnography with an improvisational theater troupe. Her current research focusing on stories of work explores the role of narrative in doing things with language, including “career orienteering.” Stay tuned for this in her forthcoming book Linguists at Work, in development for Bloomsbury Press!

Proudly sponsored by:

Anthropology

Arts + Cultural Programming

Linguistics

The Inserra Chair in Italian & Italian American Studies

Spanish & Latino Studies

MONTCLAIR STATE UNIVERSITY