WOODWINDS

"The woodwind department at Montclair State University is incredibly inclusive in their academics, ensembles, and instrumental studios. The world-class faculty want to help you grow as aspiring music professionals and well-rounded/sensitive humans. Collaborating with such extraordinary faculty and students is an incredible opportunity for aspiring educators, performers, and music therapists to hone their skills and become not only phenomenal musicians, but also people that are motivated, inspired, and prepared to be successful in their professional and personal lives."

WOODWINDS PROGRAM HIGHLIGHTS

The Cali School of Music undergraduate and graduate woodwinds degree programs offer comprehensive training in technique, theory, literature, and pedagogy. Students are mentored by faculty whose international careers range from the New York Philharmonic to Broadway and newly commissioned solo works. Students develop musicianship through solo performances, large and small ensembles, master classes with world-renowned artists, and experiencing the cultural riches of New York City nearby.
