The Department of Classics and Humanities and the Institute for the Humanities invite you to attend

Beauty and Sex: from the Physical to the Textual

A lecture given by Gareth Schmeling, Emeritus professor and noted authority on the Petronius and the Latin and Greek novel

Are 'beauty' and 'sex' simply culturally charged constructions in many ways largely separated from their objective (but perhaps unknowable) correlatives, just tokens for literary games? And what is this thing called ‘beauty’ anyway? And what do ancient narratives say about it?

Tuesday, 13 Nov, School of Business (SBUS) 255 4:00-5:30.
There will be light refreshments