Teaching Mythology: Beyond the Basics

A conference for middle and high school teachers

Thursday, February 5, 2009

9:00 am—1:30 pm

Sponsored by

The Institute for the Humanities
Montclair State University

This conference for middle and high school teachers will explore various ways in which the teaching of mythology in middle and high school can be taken beyond the "basics"—that is, the simple re-telling of cherished stories—to a deeper level. MSU faculty, as well as a middle school teacher, will describe a wide variety of approaches to mythology through the routes of music, film, art, literature, and popular culture, deploying as they go the tools of critical theory, the history of ideas, gender studies, and cultural studies.

$80.00 per teacher

4 Hours Professional Development Credit, Lunch Included
