Capoeira is a Brazilian art form that combines music, acrobatics and dance. Capoeira is a dialogue between players and is referred to as a game (jogo). Rooted in the rich African cultures, Capoeira's origin dates back 500 years to the beginnings of Brazil's slave trade period. David Morgan, also known as "gaivota" (his capoeira nickname), runs the Afro Brazilian Cultural Center in New Jersey and has been responsible for bringing a little bit of Brazil to a our community in New Jersey.
